

ABSTRACT

This invention has as its object a process for preparation of vinyl aryl derivatives by an electrochemical path.

This process is defined in that it consists in subjecting a composition that comprises a 5 cobalt salt, an aromatic halide and a vinyl ester to the action of a metal that is at least as reducing as zinc.

Application to organic synthesis.